

■ ORGANIZED MEDICINE

To the Editor: I read with interest your editorial on "A proper role for organized medicine in a new era" (May 1997).¹

Although some may feel that your comments were overly simplistic, I believe that they reach to the very heart of the matter concerning our profession. I appreciate the fact that you saw fit to publish your comments and I certainly concur. As a member of the profession for the past 40 years, I believe that the suggestions in your editorial are those which comprise the very basis for our profession.

ALAN A. PETERSON, MD
Urbana, Ill.

■ REFERENCES

1. Clough JD. A proper role for organized medicine in a new era. Cleve Clin J Med 1997; 64:232-233.

To the Editor: I just read your outstanding editorial "A proper role for organized medicine in a new era." I was very pleased to see your presentation of this argument, one which has been silent for too long in medicine. I encourage you to present this argument in other journals and media. It is so important we maintain medicine as a profession with service ideals.

I am not a member of the AMA and state society for these reasons. This goes against my general philosophy of "changing a group from within," but the overwhelming self-serving history of the AMA does not allow for change in my opinion. (I was shocked when I did a paper on the AMA's history for my master's degree.) Other forums for change and preservation of the profession may be needed.

PATRICK MCBRIDE, MD, MPH
Associate Professor
University of Wisconsin, Madison Medical School
Received via e-mail

1997

■ SEPTEMBER

- Second national conference on arrest and reversal of coronary artery disease
September 4-5
Disney Yacht Club Resort, Orlando, Fla
- Heart failure summit
September 4-5
Renaissance Cleveland Hotel
- Endocrinology review
September 7-9
Omni International Hotel, Cleveland
- Heartbeats fast and slow
September 10
Forum Conference Center, Cleveland
- Spine conference
September 19-20
- Invasive echocardiography
September 23-26
- Adolescent medicine
September 26
Marriott Downtown, Key Center, Cleveland
- Geriatrics
September 27

■ OCTOBER

- Dermatopathology self-assessment workshop
October 4
Omni International Hotel, Cleveland
- Pituitary tumors
October 15
Omni International Hotel, Cleveland
- Women's health issues
October 17
- Advances in female voiding dysfunction and pelvic disorders
October 24-25
Renaissance Cleveland Hotel

All courses will be held at the Cleveland Clinic Foundation, Bunts Auditorium, unless otherwise noted. Courses and dates subject to change. For further information and a descriptive brochure, please call (800) 762-8173 or (216) 444-5696.

The Cleveland Clinic CME schedule can be found on the World Wide Web at <http://www.ccf.org/ed/netcme.htm>.